Not illustrated. 1883 Excerpt: .hotel, albeit small and one horse in accommodation, was scrupulously clean, and Messrs. Kitchen s clerk was very civil. I shall remember the Withnell House chiefly on account of two of the most zealous newspaper reporters that I ever encountered. They were both young men; and, Talleyrand s admonition against zeal to the contrary notwithstanding, these gentlemen should surely attain eminence in the peculiar branch of the profession of journalism which they have adopted. They sprang upon me from a dark corner in the sample room of the liotel late at night; and one after the other made me the captive of Ins bow and spear. That is to say, they interviewed me half out of my mind. They wanted to know not only where I had been, and whither I was going--as if any man could tell where he was going--but likewise what I thought...
